

Forgiveness (Winter Comes)

as the seasons change before me becoming fields of white shimmering tides meet downcast eyes and day bows low to night where emptiness is hidden beneath the Christmas snow the rose that grows in the bitter cold is clinging still to hope...

elegant and beautiful
tomorrow slips away... and nothing this December night will bring back yesterday.
And i miss you, so deeply... it haunts me in my dreams,
I hear the angels whispering
You choose what you believe...

Winter comes... colder than before and I miss you... always... but now seems so much more when Winter comes... with a flood of memories I can't let go, you have to know that Christmas...
is forgiveness.
forgiveness
forgiveness

they tell me time will heal these wounds but i'm stronger now even if thats true,
I promise... i promise you i won't forget you.

Winter comes... colder than before and I miss you... always... but it feels like so much more
And Winter comes... with a flood of memories
I can't let go, but you should know that Christmas...
is forgiveness.

Winter comes... colder than before
and I miss you... always... but now its just so much more
And Winter comes... cascading memories I can't let go, I love you so its Christmas...

Winter comes... colder than before
and I miss you... always... but now its just so much more
And Winter comes... with a flood of memories
I can't let go, but you should know that Christmas...
is all about forgiveness.
and you are...
and you are...
forgiven.
